Ablaze and Sent in an Alarm.

Before Firemen Could Besoue Them.

Five persons were seriously burned in a tenement-house fire which broke out at 3.30 o'clock this morning at 29 Mill street, South Brooklyn. Had it not been for the pitiful "me w!" of a half-smothered cat, which awakened one of the tenants, who aroused the rest, it is likely that sexeral lives would have been lost.

The persons burned are: Bridget Ryan, twenty-four years old, burned about the arms, face and legs.

Margaret Ryan, her mother, sixty years old, edly burned about the arms and hands.

John Coaglin, thirty years old, burned the neck, hands, arms and legs. John Coaglin, jr., eight years old, burned about the hands and face.

The others climbed down the ladders unaided.

A general signal for all the ambulances in the western part of the city was then sent out by the firemen.
Ambulance Surgeons Poole and Butler attended to the injured at the homes of neighbors, where they had been carried by the firemen. Several physicians in the nighborhood were also in attendance.

in the nighborhood were also in attendance.

After the imprisoned people had been rescued, District Engineer James Doyle went to the third floor to the apartment of Mrs. Coaglin, to get $300 which she had in a bureau drawer.

Doyle groped his way along the floor under the clouds of smoke to the bureau. He found the money in an old stocking and was making his way safely back to the window when the floor beneath him began to sway with his weight.

He reached the ladder just in time. As he laid his hands upon the top of it the floor gave way and everything was carried below.

Doyle got down the ladder safely and presented Mrs. Coughlin, who had regained consciousness, with her savings. At 10 o'clock this morning it was said that all the injured persons were doing nicely.

that all the injured persons were doing nicely.

The building was completely gutted, but the firemen kept the flames from spreading. It was an hour before the fire was under control.

The fire completely destroyed Mrs. Smeltzer's stock and fixtures, valued at $2,000. The Ryans' loss is estimated at $500, and the Coaglins' $550. James Hunt, who occupied apartments on the second floor, lost $700 in furniture and clothing. The building was owned by Mrs. Smeltzer.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. Fire Marshal Lewis, of Brooklyn, will make an investigation.

Krumm said to-day that he expected Assistant District-Attorney Osborne to come to court and defend him, and when Mr. Osborne didn't come, Krumm said that he would act as his own lawyer.

Policemen Foster and Henry were then swern and they testified to the statements already published, to the effect that they entered Krumm's place shortly after 10 o'clock on Sunday night, and that they found twenty people in the saloon, seventeen men and three women. They found, they say, a glass of beer on the bar, which both tasted.

Krumm cross-examined the policement.

Krumm cross-examined the policemen and wanted them to admit that they doubted that it was beer, but the officers remained firm in their statements. Krumm then called his wife, "Bennie" Weiss, and Charles Schwenke, alias "Frenchy," as his witnesses. All three testified that the stuff the policemen tasted was weiss beer and not lager beer.

Krumm in summing up the evidence said that he expected to be discharged, as the arrest was a put-un job. He held that there was no evidence that would entitle the Court to hold him.

"The police are persecuting me, and I wish to e protected from them," he dsclared.

Justice Simms replied that the evidence before him was sufficient to hold him for trial. He accordingly held him in $100 ball to await the action of the Grand Jury. Saloon-Keeper Hanson, of Rivington street and the Bowery, promptly went on his ball bond.

Krumm said he would prefer charges against the policemen before the Police Commissioners. He stated funrther that he would have a startling story to tell when he took the stand before the Lexow Committee again.

The police think that Mrs. Gillan committed suicide, while the Gillans neighbors say that Gillan murdered his vife. Gillan made the following statemen is rather pretty.

Gillan made the following statement to the police after he was locked up, "About 10 o'clock yesterday morning my wife got a flask of whiskey from the bar and went to see friends. She returned about 9 o'clock last night under the influence of liquor. She sat around the bar for some time, and then started about midnight to go to her room. I know nothing about my wife's death. The revolver found near her is mine. She also had a revolver.

Both were either kept in the saloon or in the bedroom in the upper story of the building."

Stella, the dead woman's child, has not been seen since she reported finding the dead body of her mother. It is said that she went to Brooklyn to notify relatives of her mother's death.

Gillan protests his innocence, and appears to be very cool under the circumstances. He told his story without showing any signs of nervousness.

Proctor" Arrested for Attempting to Assault Miss Lye.

Dismissed on the Plea that He Was Intoxicated.

Remarkable Decision by Police Justice Welde.

Roundsman Masterson, of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police station, standing at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Columbus avenue at 2 o'clock this morning, saw a ab dash by going eastward towards Eighth avenue. At the same time a cab window, plainly to be seen in the glare of the electric light. She was pounding on the window frame and creaming hysterically for assistance. Masterson, who is a sprinter, dashed after the cab, shouting for the driver to stop. After a chase of a block, the cabman stopped his horse, and Masterson

"What does all this mean?" he de manded from a young man who thrust his head out of the cab window. The young woman whose shricks had alarmed the policeman was lying back on the sent sobbing hysterically. Before her companion could offer any explanation she told Masterson that she had been shamefully abused by her companion.

"We have been driving about the city. I don't know where," she sobbed, "and during the time he has made frequent improper advances. While passing along One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, at Amsterdam avenue, he grossly insulted me, and then I began to cry for help."

Roundsman Masterson waited for no further explanation. He took the party to the station-house. There the driver of cab 650 was able to show his inno-cence of any wrong doing and was al-lowed to go. A charge of attempted criminal assault was then entered against the young man, who said he was George Proctor, a salesman, living in a boarding-house at 66 West Sixteenth
